The Junior Promenade of the R. S. H. S. was given on the evening of St. Patrick's day, in the gymnasium, and was one of the most successful events of the kind given here in many years. The hall was beautifully decorated by an appointed committee. A hanging garden effect was carried out with a color scheme of leaf green and canary yellow and the walls were tinted in a delicate shade of green. One of the most pleasing effects was the arrangement of seventy-five hanging baskets of flowering plants, hanging overhead among lights which were shaded with yellow burlap, covered with yellow poppies. Arches made of lattice work formed the garden wall, which was lined with boxes of beautiful flowering plants and ferns. Entwined in the lattice, and around the entire hall were red poppies, which added a most artistic and artistic touch. Comfortable wicker chairs were placed in the arch ways for spectators. Dainty refreshments were served at long tables in the refreshment room, where the decorations corresponded with those of the ball room. The Patrons and Patronesses were: Mayor and Mrs. S. C. Simpson, Sam and Mrs. J. W. Peters, Supp. and Mrs. C. H. Skidmore, Principal and Mrs. P. A. Hinckley, Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Farnsworth, Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Wright's A GOOD PLACE TO TRADE

"WE, THE PEOPLE"

First prize essay in the contest sponsored by the Kawanis club of Ogden to encourage study of the constitution and other fundamental documents.

By BERYL BERINGER Ogden High School.

The preamble to our constitution begins "We, the People of the United States." It does not say "We, the several states of the union," but "We, the People." Jefferson said, "I am much pleased, too, with the substitution of the method of voting by persons, instead of voting by states." This is the fundamental idea in the document. It is the idea and ideal of a nation. Our government is an institution "of the people, for the people and by the people." Many times selfish states and men have tried to destroy this idea, but they have not succeeded. Now it has become a policy which can not be broken.

When our forefathers framed the constitution of the United States they did what they thought would most benefit the people of their country. These men did not work with selfish interests; they did not work because of the glory they would receive from the association of their names with this paper; they worked for the good of their people as a nation, and for this reason the United States has one of the best governments in the world.

SUPREMACY. The constitution is the supreme law of the land, but it is not a tyrannical law. It gives no man sole power. There is no room for absolutism, because it is the representatives of the people who make the laws. If the states had recognized the advisability of having a strong central power rather than state supremacy, there would have been less trouble over the slave question and many other questions that arose during the early period of our development.

LEGISLATIVE POWER. The legislative authority is vested in the two houses of congress, the senate and the house of representatives. The legislators are chosen by the people in a popular vote. These men are expected to represent their ments were served. A large birthday cake with five candles formed the centerpiece for the table. Invited guests were Margaret and Florence Heine, Raymond and Chase Reeder, Marion Storking, Fred Handy, Ruth Potts and Sherman Westender.

Dr. Edwin E. Sparks, recent general of Phi Kappa Phi, who last week visited the Utah chapters of the organization at the University of Utah and the Utah Agricultural college, was entertained at dinner in Ogden Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hepler. Dr. Sparks is known to the people of the west through his writings of American history and is president emeritus of Pennsylvania State college.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Winnifred Rouse to George Francis Vance. The couple were married at 8 o'clock Thursday evening at the rectory of the Church of the Good Shepherd, by the Rev. John W. Hyslop.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan R. Smith, of 231 Washington avenue, have as their guest Mrs. Smith's sister, Miss Ruby Wallace of Salt Lake. Miss Wallace is planning to spend three or four weeks in Ogden.

Mrs. Richard A. Pierce spent the week in Salt Lake, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Richard K. Pierce.

Brigham Society

The Junior class of Ogden High school will present their play "Stop Thief" at the Orpheum theatre on Tuesday evening, April 4. Here is the synopsis of the play:

This play is a genuine example of farcical comedy, the like of which has never been produced in Ogden before. "Stop Thief" is a farce in three acts, written by Carlisle Moore and is of the most modern character. Hearty and prolonged laughter is the only excuse offered by Mr. Moore for writing "Stop Thief" to other is needed.
